Founder of Gettysburg Airport Is Co-Designer Of "Foolproof" Airplane

Henry A. Berliner and Associate Manufacture Small Two-place Ship That Cannot be Thrown Into Spin or Stall.

New Craft Is Put Through Severe Test by Experienced Pilot but Proves it Is "Fool - resistant"; One Control

A small two-place, (pilot and passenger) low - wing monoplane powered by a 65-horsepower motor and all-metal except for its fabric-covered wings was recently put through severe tests by an experienced pilot. He tried to make it spin, stall or do other things that cause planes to crash but to no avail. He was flying the "Ercoupe," the newest thing for amateur fliers; a little ship that lands at 45 miles per hour, has a speed of 105 miles per hour and a cruising range of 350 miles.

Richard Thruelsen tells about this "test flight" in an interesting article appearing in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post. Accompanying him on the flight was Henry A. Berliner, co-designer of the plane. Mr. Berliner is well known in Gettysburg. Before becoming famous as the designer of the noted military "Berliner Pursuit Plane" and during the infancy of the industry, he inaugurated the first airport here which received the first commerical airport certificate issued in the United States.

"Fly It Yourself"

"Mr. Thruelsen says in his Post article "Fly It Yourself" that he made his flight from the Philadelphia municipal airport. When he took his place in the cockpit of the little ship Mr. Berliner, who was at his side, said:

"All right, Thruelsen, you happen to be a pilot. The first thing I want you to do is to forget, if you can, everything you know about flying. I want you to act as though you'd never been behind the controls of a plane. I'm going to tell you what to do in order to take off, to fly and later to land. On the ground, handle her just as you would a car; in the air, handle her any way you like. There's the throttle at your right hand. The brake handle's under it. The wheel's in front of you. Turn it to go right or left for directional control, pull it toward you to climb and push it to go down."

The author then said that he taxied the ship to the end of the runway, stopped it by applying the brake, "gave the engine a burst and it spun around in a circle."

"Now open her up and drive her down the runway," Mr. Berliner instructed, "and she'll just about fly herself at sixty miles an hour. When she feels light, pull the wheel back a little and climb her by the air-speed meter—about sixty. Go ahead, it's yours."

110 Miles Per Hour

Mr. Thruelsen said that he pushed the throttle open and the ship moved, picking up speed as it moved along the runway. Soon, he said, the ship lightened and it was off the ground. "I pulled the wheel back a trifle," he writes and "the nose lifted against the sky and the ground dropped away from us. At the edge of the field we had reached three hundred feet altitude and we were climbing at sixty miles an hour."

At a thousand feet "Berliner made another motion with his hands, and I pushed the wheel away from me. The nose dropped and we were flying straight and level." The author said the air-speed was 110 miles an hour.

"Pull back the throttle till the engine-speed indicator reads about twenty-one hundred revolutions," Mr. Berliner instructed. "Now all you have to do is decide where you want to go."

The author says that he tried to forget his flying knowledge and to do what Mr. Berliner told him. He then says "I'm convinced that anyone who can drive a car could have taken the ship off just as I did."

Continuing Mr. Thruelsen said he

Says State Leads Nation in WPA Jobs

Harrisburg, Dec. 21 (AP)—Col. Philip Mathews, state W.P.A. administrator, said today Pennsylvania has led the nation in number of W.P.A. jobs for the past six months, replying to Governor James in the latest "battle of figures" between the two executives over the Commonwealth's share in works employment.

The latest controversy was stirred up over the plight of 12,000 sewing project workers, who Mathews informed by letter would be out of jobs if the state failed toprovide more than $2.50 a month per person.

The administrator quoted a section of tme 1939 W.P.A. act, which makes it mandatory that the sponsor of non-federal projects, after January 1, 1940, put up 25 per cent. He said the sewing project authorization had expired on October 22, but an extension had continued them until January 27, after which he said a new project must be started if they are to be kept in operation.

F. MARK BREAM IS CHOSEN HEAD OF SPORTSMEN

Association Hears Reports on Stocking of Streams

F. Mark Bream, retired city mail carrier, was elected president of the Adams County Fish and Game association at the annual organization meeting which was held Friday evening at the Officers' club at the site of the first C.C.C. camp on West Confederate avenue. Mr. Bream was one of the founders and the first president of the present sportsmen's organization.

Charles Weaver and Walter Coshun, Gettysburg, were chosen vice presidents. Donald L. Hammers, Gettysburg, was re-elected secretary and J. D. Clapsaddle, Gettysburg R. D., was chosen as treasurer for the coming year. Calvin Shank and P. W. Stallsmith, both of Gettysburg, were named to the executive committee.

President John Fidler presided over the meeting until after the election. Regrets were read from Seth Gordon, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Game commission, who had been invited to address the meeting.

County Streams Stocked

John W. Brehm reported that county streams have been stocked this fall with two truck loads of black bass and three loads of trout. Later in the meeting H. L. Folkerod was designated to ask Fish Commissioner C. A. French to have Birch run stocked with trout from the Chambersburg water dam to Caledonia.

The sportsmen discussed the proposal made by area Boy Scout officials that hunters turn over their deer hides to scouts for craft work and asked interested hunters to comply. A representative of the scouts is to be invited to attend the next meeting of the sportsmen to explain the plan in detail.

Game Protector Leo A. Bushman thanked the sportsmen for their cooperation during the last year; reminded them of the need for filing game kill reports at Harrisburg before January 15, and announced he has a large supply of food for use in a game feeding program this winter.

Nazis Vision Britain Inciting U.S. to 'Commit Warlike Act'

Berlin Spokesman Gives on British Proposal to Bolster Shipping

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—Secretary Hull declined today to comment on statements made in Berlin to the effect that Germany would consider it an unfriendly act if the United States requisitioned foreign flag ships now in American ports and sold them to the British government.

(By the Associated Press)

An official of the German foreign office in Berlin said today a British proposal to bolster British shipping through United States action was "nothing other than inciting America to commit a warlike act."

The proposal was voiced Friday in London by Ronald H. Cross, minister of shipping, who suggested the United States might spare some merchant vessels of her own and turn over "a certain number of enemy ships" now in American ports.

"I speak with tremendous earnestness in my capacity as your official informant and spokesman," the German foreign office spokesman said."

The spokesman said Germany's interest was "extraordinary" because the reich "has shown restraint to the point of self effacement, while on the other side there has been a systematic policy of pinpricks, challenges, humiliations and even moral aggression."

France Defies Nazis

In Vichy, France, informed sources said Fernand de Brinon, French ambassador in German-occupied Paris, acting on orders of Chief of State Philippe Petain, told the Germans that France would not make any changes in her cabinet or take back the ousted vice premier, Pierre Laval.

From Athens came a report that British bombers, based on Greek soil, had successfully attacked oil tanks and railways at Brindisi, on the heel of the Italian boot.

Dispatches from the Greek front in Albania said the Greeks had captured an Italian colonel and two battalions near Tepeleni and had occupied two villages and two strategically important heights in the area.

The German government announced it had requested the state department in Washington to recall three staff members of the U. S. Embassy in Paris on the grounds they had helped an unnamed British officer to escape, and said the request had been heeded.

Liverpool Bombed

German airmen singled out the Liverpool industrial and shipping district last night and early today for another mass bombing — one of the heaviest the often-raided Merseyside has undergone.

Reports from the Libyan and Albanian battlefronts, meanwhile, indicated British and Greek troops were keeping Italy, Germany's war partner, strictly on the defensive in the Mediterranean.

Blocks of homes and buildings were smashed during the nazi raid on Liverpool and a number of persons were injured when a bomb struck a hotel. A British communique reported, however, that casualties altogether were not believed large.

It was noted that the roar of anti-aircraft batteries seemed heaviest in the industrial sections.

London and scattered sections of Britain also were raided and some bombs from unidentified planes fell in neutral Eire.

The British reported their own planes attacked Berlin and the nazi "invasion ports" during the night.

Reinforcements for English

Reinforcements for the army of the Nile moved up steadily through eastern Libya as British bombers and warships pounded the bristling Italian defense works around Bardia, where 20,000 fascist troops are reported trapped.

The British were reported closing in preparatry to a final assault on the port, and at the same time striking deeper into Libya in the desert 130 miles to the south. There an Italian garrison was said to be besieged at the oasis of Giarabub.

Japan had a surprise cabinet shakeup today in a move viewed by observers as aimed at stricter enforcement of economic restrictions.

Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye appointed new ministers of justice and home affairs, apparently with the intention of strengthening home front departments.

Italian Bombers Active

Argirocastro, Albania, Dec. 18 (Delayed) (AP)—Italian bombers attacked Argirocastro in three waves today, dropping explosives in the heart of this medieval fortress town of 12,000 inhabitants which the Greeks won from the Italian army less than two weeks ago.

Two Truck Drivers Held for Grand Jury

Two Baltimore coal truck drivers, arrested Friday afternoon by Private Martin H. Cullen of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police on the Abbottstown-Hanover highway for drunken driving, were held for the January grand jury after hearings this morning at 10 o'clock before Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore.

The defendants are Charles W. Topper, 21, formerly of New Oxford, and Ammon Yarger, 28. Both were driving loaded coal trucks south, according to Commonwealth witnesses. Two witnesses stated at the hearing today the two loaded trucks mounted one hill side by side with the white line between them and followed a weaving course at a number of other points.

Justice Basehore set bail for each at $500.

STATE TO PLACE 3,287 IN DRAFT DURING JANUARY

362 Trainees To Be Inducted at Harrisburg

Harrisburg, Dec. 21 (AP)—Called upon to select another 3,287 young men for a year's training in the Army next month, the Pennsylvania draft headquarters began today to assign quotas to each of its 422 local conscription areas.

The order for Pennsylvania's second contingent in the peace-time draft of men from 21 to 36 was received by Governor James yesterday from Major General W. S. Grant, commander of the Third Corps area, Baltimore.

Induction of the 3,287 at five centers — Philadelphia, Wilkes-Barre, Harrisburg, Altoona and Pittsburgh —is scheduled between January 11 and 31.

Governor James ordered the selective service headquarters to begin immediately to break down the total number by local draft areas, and the 422 boards will be notified shortly of their quotas, based on the registration in each area.

The requisition calls only for white men. General Grant explained earlier in the week that housing facilities for negro draftees had not yet been completed.

The state is scheduled to produce 62,000 young men for the draft before June 30, 1941, and War Department officials estimate that will require roughly 5 per cent of the registration in each local draft area.

The January requisition calls for 920 from Philadelphia induction center, 657 from Wilkes-Barre, 362 from Harrisburg, 329 from Altoona, and 1,019 from Pittsburgh.

Each center serves as initial receiving point for men from the counties surrounding it.

Here is the schedule for induction of 362 men at Harrisburg: January 11 and 13, 125 both days, and January 14, 112.

Founder of Gettysburg Airports Is Co-Designer Of Fool-Proof Plane

flew to Camden, put the ship through its paces, that is, testing it for various difficult maneuvers, to which the ship responded. Then over the airport he decide to land and again followed instruction as though he was an inexperienced pilot. He said he closed the throttle, idled the engine, pulled the nose up until he lost flying speed.

"For a moment," he writes, "we hung there, then the nose dropped slowly down across the horizon, and as we picked up speed, rose again to approximately level flight. The stall had lost us perhaps fifty feet of altitude. I tried it again, this time giving the wheel a hard turn at the top of the stall, an invitation to a tail spin. We swung away in a shallow turn.

Comments Intentional Errors

"I made a third and a fourth attempt, trying to induce that twisting, revolving, out-of-control dive which is the dread of all pilots. But this plane has been teased by experts and has never been spun. So I tried to commit the errors of inexpert fliers the world over—too-shallow turns which result in a skid, and overly steep turns which end in a slipping, sidewise rush toward the ground. But the machine, with its single wheel control, foiled me. The 'inherent flying ability' was built into its design and despite my intentional errors in control, it went serenely on its way."

At a thousand feet above the Camden airport the author-pilot decided to land and he followed Mr. Berliner's instructions again.

"I circled the field just outside the boundaries. When one of the runways made a pathway into the wind, I pulled the throttle closed, turned the wheel till we were lined up with the strip and pointed the nose toward the ground. We drifted down, crossed over a small lake, a road and finally the boundary fence. I sat there doing nothing, as the ground rose to meet us. The airspeed meter read sixty. An instant later we hit with a slight jar. After a short run I pulled on the brake and we stopped."

Plane Lands Itself

Mr. Berliner then had the author-pilot repeat the landing but this time to take his hands from the wheel of the ship and "let her land herself." The plane landed with a jolt, the author states, "but surely and solidly."

This is the little airplane that Mr. Berliner and his associate and designer, Fred E. Weick, have perfected. It is the ship that Mr. Thruelson calls "The Foolproof Airplane" . . . fool-resistant . . . and . . . "as safe as anything which travels at more than sixty miles an hour ever can be."

Mr. Berliner inaugurated the Gettysburg airport. On December 6, 1927, he received a certificate of public convenience from the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania to operate the airport, carry freight and passengers and conduct a general air service business.

The incorporators of the Gettysburg Flying Service were Henry A. Berliner, Andrew H. Nash, Lowell S. Harding, former pilot and instructor here, Charles P. Swope and Howard C. Mitinger, former manager of the Hoffman Hotel on York street.

Treats at Institutions

Public and semi-public institutions here will go to special efforts to bring Christmas cheer to those within.

At the Warner hospital both halls have lighted Christmas trees and there is a lighted tree in the reception hall and each w ard. Each private room has a small Christmas tree and the whole building is brightened with greens, silver bells and bits of red ribbon, berries or candles.

There are 20 patients at the hospital now but whatever the number on Christmas day each will find a special cover and favor on his or her dinner tray that will be laden with a turkey dinner and all that goes with it. A $35 appropriation by the Women's Auxiliary of the hospital and gifts from other sources made the special surroundings possible. On Christmas Eve the nurses will hold their annual Christmas party at the Nurses' home.

December 25 won't be just another day for the 75 guests at the County Home because Steward Calvin R. Smith has arranged for six big turkeys to form the chief course of a dinner that will have "all the fixin's" and will be enjoyed also by the 17 attendants at the institution. The county commissioners have seen to it there will be candy, apples and oranges for all, while guests there annually are the recipients of many other gifts, including those from the Gettysburg firemen. All of the buildings at the home have been specially decorated.

Just this week Dr. C. G. Crist, county home physician, treated everyone to ice cream; the Gettysburg lodge of the Eagles sent several hundred sandwiches and home economics extension classes in all parts of the county sent hundreds of Christmas cookies there for distribution.

Open House at C.C.C. Camp

Sheriff D. J. Wolff has promised prisoners at the county jail a turkey dinner and is placing special holiday decorations in the county building. There are 15 prisoners now.

Ninety pounds of turkey will be consumed by the approximately 100 C.C.C. camp enrollees who will spend the holidays at the battlefield camp quarters while about 65 or 70 use a five-day leave, beginning today, to go to their homes. Camp buildings have been decorated and open house will be observed there on December 25.

Following the dinner an entertainment program will be presented by camp talent under the direction of a special entertainment committee.

MAROON QUINT KEEPS RECORD CLEAN BY WIN

Patterson Park Bows 31-17; Fairfield Loses

After getting off to a poor start in the first period the Gettysburg high cagers turned on the heat in the last three periods to wallop a highly-regarded Patterson Park high quintet of Baltimore here Friday evening, 31-17.

The Maroons gave every indication that they will be strong contenders for the Southern Pennsylvania loop title with a brilliant defensive game coupled with a fine shooting attack.

In recording their third straight victory in as many starts the Forney-men were forced to come from behind, trailing 5-0 in the first seven minutes of play. Patterson Park showed plenty of class in the opening minutes but once the battling Maroons took the lead they were never headed.

Baum blew a chance to score the first point for the visitors when he missed a foul. Goodman looped two goals between which he missed a free throw. Ermer made good on a foul shot. Staley finally dribbled through to give Gettysburg its first goal shortly before the period ended.

Starting the second period Hankey netted a long toss. Rudo missed a foul and on a double-foul Plank and Malashuk each converted. Hankey sent the Maroons ahead on a short shot and Sachs netted a long stab. "Pooney" Carter replaces Cline and immediately dribbled down the side court to score a sensational one-handed overhead toss. Branner tabbed a goal which was matched by Plank to enable Gettysburg to hold a 13-8 lead at half time.

Quick goals by Cline and Hankey to open the last half gave the Maroons a comfortable lead which was never threatened. The entire squad played an excellent brand of ball the remainder of the game which found Patterson completely outclassed.

Making good on nine of 10 foul throws, the Gettysburg reserves downed Fairfield in a thrilling preliminary game, 19-17. The Maroons got off to a 5-0 lead in the first period but Coach Ellmore Slaybaugh's outfit came back strong and midway in the third period held a 15-8 advantage. Gettysburg tightened its defense and gradually cut the lead and then took over in the last minutes of play.

Arendtsville Divides At Washington Township

Coach Charles Smith's Arendtsville cagers divided a pair of games with Washington Township on the latter's floor Friday evening, the boys winning by the overwhelming score of 44-11 while the girls lost a close decision in the preliminary game, 23-20.

In the boys' game the entire regular lineup of the upper countians figured in the scoring. After the first period there was never any doubt as to the outcome, the score at half time being 18-6.

Washington Township's undefeated girls' team was given a scare by the Arendtsville lassies but an early lead enabled it to stave off a last period rally by the apple-pickers. The visitors led 16-9 at half time.

An Evening Thought

Esteem cannot be where there is no confidence, and there can be no confidence where there is no respect. —Giles.

The Words They Used

Crown Princess Juliana (thrilled by the window displays while sightseeing in New York)—"Amazing originality."

Survey by the National Maritime Union (C.I.O.)—"In addition to her own merchant fleet, the largest in the world, the British ministry of shipping now controls fleets totaling 9,000,000 tons formerly operated by countries now in German hands. Nevertheless, the U. S. Maritime commission has approved the transfer or sale to foreign countries of American vessels aggregating more than 1,000,000 tons, of which the British got almost half."

The Rector of President Roosevelt's Washington Church (when asked whether the President would be in church, this Sunday)—"That, I cannot promise. But we expect God to be there, and we fancy that will be incentive enough for a reasonably large attendance."

Egon F. Hanfstaengl (Harvard student who spent several years in German youth camps)—"These Bund movements all over the country and the over-enlarged consular staffs are not accidents. It has been suggested that America should expel all nazi officials in this county. I see no reason why they should not be expelled and every reason why they should be kicked out."

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

THE OPEN ROAD

RECENTLY a very fine poet died in England. His name was W. H. Davis. Years ago I was attracted to his work and acquired about a dozen of his small books of exquisite poems. In his youth he was very wild and came to the United States, where he lived the life of a tramp.

Davis took many trips back and forth from England to America on cattle boats, but in trying to beat his way on a Canadian train, his foot slipped and he lost his leg. His wandering, open life career seemed doomed, but what he gathered from those years became the basis of his great love of Nature and fed his later years with beauty and imagination, as expressed in the dozens of books that came from his publisher's presses.

Walt Whitman once wrote: "Henceforth I will complain no more. Done with indoor repinings, strong and content, I will take to the open road." And so the great poet wandered — through busy streets, with eyes wide open, into parks, back and forth on ferryboats, into the countryside, and to wherever people walked, or were. You feel the freshness of the outdoor air as you read Whitman's poems.

Much of that lovely book by Jeffries, "The Story of My Heart," was written as the author rested on the green grass of the out-of-doors and looked to the blue sky above. Burns would never have written his deathless poems without having loved the earth and worked its soil.

Walks into the forest are always stimulating. The sound of the crackling sticks upon the ground, the give of the soft, velvety moss, and the rich odor of the foliage, and of the earth itself, are experiences that stay with one. Books cannot explain their sensation.

As a boy, in the evening after supper, I loved to walk to the edge of town—and to venture far beyond, and back again. It thrilled me to see the larger gardens and the increasing acreage, as the huddled houses of the town gave way to the scattered ones beyond the limits. No other use of the modern car is quite so valuable as its gift to human beings of the opportunity to go far and wide over the open road.

The wisest—and safest teacher, is Nature. She keeps telling us all something new, sometimes startling but always true.

KNUDSEN WITH HILLMAN, KNOX AND STIMSON

To Have Unlimited Power in Production for Defense

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—Four men personally selected by President Roosevelt as a defense "high command" shouldered the concentrated responsibility today of arming America.

To the new organization—to be known as the office for production management for defense—the President late yesterday named William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman of the present defense commission, War Secretary Stimson and Navy Secretary Knox. Knudsen will be director.

Although the present defense advisory commission will be retained, it was expected that the new board would take over most of its duties.

Power Under Reorganization Act

Mr. Roosevelt's decision to create the new office, under authority of the 1939 government reorganization act, followed widely-voiced demands for a greater centralization of authority in defense matters. Prospects were that the new set-up would be functioning by January 1.

Labor Management and Buyer

The board, Mr. Roosevelt said, will represent all three of the elements involved in every process of production—labor, management and the buyer-user.

Big, Danish-born Knudsen, one of the nation's outstanding production experts, will represent management.

Hillman, a union man for 30 years, will handle labor problems, and will be assistant director of the board.

Secretaries Knox and Stimson will present the viewpoint of the buyer-user—the Army and Navy.

The new four-man board will be given full responsibility to make devisions of policy, without conferring with the President and with all the powers which the President constitutionally can turn over to subordinates.

Zivic and Jenkins Fight 10-Round Draw

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs must have had an uneasy minute or two last night while the announcer was gathering up the slips and discovering that Fritzie Zivic and Lew Jenkins had fought a 10-round draw in the Garden.

Mike already had Zivic signed to defend his welterweight title against Henry Armstrong on January 17, and that would have been a fine one to try to ballyhoo if Fritzie had dropped a duke to Jenkins, the lightweight champ.

ChristmasHymns

IT CAME UPON THE MIDNIGHT CLEAR
Dr. Edmund Sears

It came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth,
To touch their harps of gold,
"Peace on the earth, good will to men
From heav'n's all-gracious King."
The world in solemn stillness lay
To hear the angels sing.

Still through the cloven skies they come
With peaceful wings unfurl'd;
And still their heav'nly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lowly plains
They bend on hov'ring wing,
And ever o'er its Babel sounds
The blessed angels sing.

For lo, the days are hastening on,
By prophet bards foretold
When with the ever-circling years
Comes round the age of gold;
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling
And the whole world give back the song
Which now the angels sing.

MINOR COLLISION

The car of Howard K. Bergenthalle, East Aurora, New York, was damaged slightly in a collision with another machine, seven miles south of here on the Emmitsburg road on Friday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock. No one was injured. Officer George J. Evango, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, investigated but no charges were filed.

Backgrounds of Adams County

By B. F. MacPherson

No. 170--"Goodwill to Men----"

THIS is our Christmas column for 1940. During the last three years we have exhausted the material pertaining to the historical background of the day, so in this sketch, in keeping with the season, we are going to quote a Christmas Prayer, written many years ago, but more than appropriate for today.

"Let us pray to God, the Unconquerable Spirit in Man.

"Help us to rebuild the world for more splendid lines than ours; add wisdom to the ardor of the young, and loving kindness to the musings of the old; make our eyes aware of things that are too gentle to proclaim themselves; give us emotion far beyond the fret of nerves; fear us from fear of our own brothers, and from the triple curse of greed, intolerance and vainglory.

"Lift the dark cloud of war from our future, and grant comfort to all quiet kindly folk who carry peace in their hearts amidst the stress of conflict, strengthen them also to endure what may befall.

"Bring down the tyrant, befriend the victims of injustice and equate the rewards of labor nearer to the needs of men; and accustom us to work, not for the snatched profit, but for the common good and for the planned destiny of mankind.

"Give patience to those who wait restlessly for this, and hope to those who have ceased to believe that it will come; and fill our hearts with faith in a Kingdom of Heaven which our children's children may some day find on earth."

* * *

TO continue our notes from last week, we return to our survey in Christ Reformed graveyard. Our survey in this cemetery has proved to be rather more difficult than we expected. Up to this time our work has been more or less concerned with the so-called Scotch-Irish element, and not among the early Germans so, as we said before, the job has been going rather slowly. However, we are still going on, and we hope in time to complete the survey.

Among the men, within the Revolutionary age limit, whose graves are to be found in this cemetery, are the following:

1. Philip Rohn, born December 15, 1757, died March 6, 1837. Wife, Catharine Rahn, born March 17, 1769, died January 19, 1838.

2. Jacob Biehl, born December 9, 1753, died October 9, 1815. Wife, Catharine Biehl, born December 28, 1775, died December 8, 1817.

3. Conrad Duttera, born 1728, died January 18, 1808. Wife, Juliana Duttera, born 1739, died November 6, 1805. The inscription on Conrad Duttera's stone is in German, while that on his wife's is in English.

4. John Eckert, born April 11, 1733, died April 1, 1811. Wife, Catharine Pfoutz, born 1740, died 1815.

5. John George Kitzmiller, born October 30, 1738, died March 10, 1834. Wife, Elizabeth Kitzmiller, born February 1, 1738, died June 19, 1811.

6. Lewis Mause, born April 2, 1718, died November 3, 1807.

7. Jacob Warner, born 1741, died 1803. Wife Magdalena Warner, born 1744, died 1808.

8. Jacob Will, born 1728, died October 27, 1812.

9. George Wilt, born 1763, died July 1, 1837. Wife, Catharine, Wilt, born 1771, died October 28, 1830.

10. Johann Adam Wintroth, born December 20, 1739, died August 30, 1815. Inscription in German.

This list, as given above, is far from complete, and if any of our readers can supply additional names, with proof of Revolutionary service, we would more than appreciate such help. As you know, in this Revolutionary series, we have been including, in addition to the record of service in the Revolutionary war, all available data on the family of the soldier.

Like all old cemeteries there are many stones missing from this one. This being the case, we would also appreciate any data pertaining to the unmarked graves of soldiers buried in this graveyard. Of course we could not include such notes in this column unless we had sufficient proof to present with them.

* * *

We wish you a very Merry Christmas.

Fairfield

Fairfield—Sergeant and Mrs. Paul C. Stoner, of Fortress Monroe, Virginia, are spending a thirty day furlough with Sergeant Stoner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Stoner, Gettysburg R. D.

At a recent meeting of the Fairfield Civic Group arrangements were made to distribute Christmas baskets to the needy of Fairfield and surrounding community. This project is carried out by the Civic Group each year with the aid of the churches in the community. Committees from the churches which met with the Civic Group are as follows: Zion Lutheran—Mrs. LeRoy Sheads, Mrs. Ella Glenn, Mrs. Luther Kepner; St. Mary's Catholic—Charles Weishaar, George Steinberger; St. John's Evangelical and Reformed—the Rev. Nevin Frantz, Miss Alma Henry, Mrs. Ray Weikert.

The baskets will be packed at Moore's store Monday evening at 7 o'clock and will be distributed on Tuesday.

Announcement was also made that a holiday dance will be held in the Fairfield Community hall Friday evening, December 27, with Zell Smith's orchestra furnishing the music. Dancing will start at 9 o'clock.

Monday evening, December 23, the annual popcorn party will be held in the Community hall kitchen. Work will start at six o'clock. Everyone is invited to help.

Tuesday evening "Santa Claus" will distribute the treat to the children of the town and vicinity in Community hall. Santa Claus will make his appearance about 6:30 o'clock.

Sugar and popcorn are still needed for treat. Anyone who wishes to donate either may leave the donation at the home of Mrs. E. H. Slaybaugh.

Shoes and overshoes of any size for both boys and girls are badly needed for the Christmas box. Shirts of all sizes are still needed. Donations for the box can be given until Tuesday morning.

Robert Geigley arrived Friday at his home for the holiday season. Mr. Geigley is a student at Dickinson Law school.

DEM. LEADERS MAY CONFER WITH JAMES

Deadlock in Legislature May Be Avoided by Conference

Harrisburg, Dec. 21 (AP)—Majority Leader James A. Geltz asserted today the republicans in the state senate would present "a definite program" in the 1941 legislature, regardless of the actions of the democratic-controlled house.

The decision to be "a vigorous majority" has the unanimous support of the entire delegation of 32 republicans in the 50-man senate, Geltz declared.

Republicans Not on Defensive

"We don't intend to be on the defensive just because the democrats control the house," the Allegheny senator asserted. "We feel it will be better for us to present our program rather than merely act on any program that comes over from the house."

The republicans in the November 5 election increased their senate majority from 27-23 in the 1939 and 1940 sessions to 32 to 18. Those same results however swept the house from republican control, 129 to 79, to democratic domination, 126 to 82.

Politically Divided Houses

How the politically-divided houses of the '41 legislature will get together may hinge upon the plans of Governor James to invite democratic leaders for a conference with him. James said he would "get in touch" with Meredith Meyers, democratic state chairman, "soon" to arrange the conference.

Leo A. Achterman, democratic floor leader of the house, said it was "too early" to say how his group would operate in the presentation of legislation—especially on taxes and the budget—"until we find out from the governor exactly how the commonwealth stands and what is needed."

It Takes More Than A War To Stop 'Em

AP Feature Service

THE earth-shaking news of 1940 was sung out to the accompaniment of a comic chorus.

Maybe you don't remember (but we do) that the wife of a Florida furniture factory worker announced she expected to have quintuplets momentarily. Soon she decided she had misunderstood her physician's comments and confirmed this by having a single baby—a girl. Not until then did the excitement die down.

And that's just a sample.

In the field of law and order, things had a way of getting out of hand. In Memphis, the policeman in a theater production was late for a rehearsal because he had been arrested. . . . In Chattanooga and Walnut Creek, Calif., men were convicted of riding horses while drunk. . . . At Los Angeles, regulations issued by the police department contained the injunction that officers "must look intelligent at all times."

Names made goofy news, too. Movie Producer Samuel Goldwyn, after discovering Doris Jordan, discovered he previously had discovered her when she was known as Doris Davenport. . . . Competing druggists named Large and Small turned up in Los Angeles. . . . In the same town, two women named Tew got divorces the same day. The Tews' day was Friday.

Honce Places Conscription Second In His 1940 Rating

By CHARLES HONCE
Associated Press News Editor

THE top news story of 1940 in my rating was made in America—the presidential campaign.

No other event of the year excited the American people as did that story. In the rest of the world, it competed successfully for attention with other exciting happenings.

It began with the nomination of Wendell Willkie by the Republicans, which was a thunderbolt, and it ended in a roaring climax with the re-election of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

There were two simple reasons for the importance of this story: To the United States it meant a third-term president for the first time in history; to the world, continuance of the Roosevelt policies regarding the European war, which may settle the destinies of most of the world's peoples.

For the majority of 1940's greatest news stories, one must look across the seas where war's panoply spread to the fullest in the horror of death, destruction and suffering.

Here they are as I see them, the ten biggest news stories of 1940:

Charles Honce

1. Roosevelt Wins Again

Probably no American political issue has been more widely debated than that of a third presidential term. President Roosevelt shattered the tradition in his victory over Wendell L. Willkie, who thoroughly broke tradition himself in his ball-of-fire campaign for the Republican presidential nomination and his effort to win election.

2. U. S. Adopts Conscription

The Secretary of War put his hand in a jar, took out a capsule and the first number had been drawn in America's precedent-shattering peacetime conscription, for which 17 million men had registered. This story shaped up big because it was part of a great national effort for re-armament for "all out" defense of the Western Hemisphere. Coincidentally, 21 American nations agreed to stand together for that defense.

3. France Surrenders

A tragic story of stunning impact, high in interest. Described by many experts as the finest in the world, the French army melted before the German blitzkrieg in a few weeks. And into the discard, at least temporarily, went the historical French phase, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

4. Battle Of Britain

Here is one of the epic stories of the year. Adolf Hitler smashed to the channel ports, and then across that short stretch of water he sent his bombers at England. Fire, death, destruction rained from the skies. Devastation has been enormous, but Britons have fought back, bitterly and stubbornly. "There Will Always Be an England," they sing, as they stumble through the rubble of their homes, factories, churches and hallowed buildings.

5. Italy Repulsed

Italy came into the war late, but within six months, the British had blasted Mussolini's invading army out of Egypt, the Greeks were pursuing his legions in Albania, his fleet had been damaged at Taranto and evidences of internal stresses had come to light.

6. Destroyers For Bases

Few issues aroused more discussion than the United States' trade of 50 destroyers for defense bases on British Western Hemisphere territory. President Roosevelt made the deal and announced it after it was all over. "He should have consulted Congress," argued many, and the discussion carried right on through to the end of the year.

7. Rumanian Travail

"Unhappy" Rumania was the way the Balkan nation was described by many writers. Its troubles of the year made top news. Russia grabbed off Bessarabia; Hungary took back a portion of Transylvania; Bulgaria got a piece at the pie counter. An earthquake devastated; King Carol abdicated in a hurry; then the passions of Iron Guardists broke out in mass executions and the Germans moved in.

8. Flight From Dunkerque

A saga of extraordinary human interest was this flight of the British from continental Europe with the bloody sands of Dunkerque the final stepping-off place. Some 330,000 British were carried to safety under the blasting guns of the Germans.

9. Russia Adds Territory

Russia conquered Finland, took some choice portions of her territory; absorbed the republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, and then took back Bessarabia from Rumania. An absorbing news story, these moves of the Russian giant.

10. Fifth Column In Norway

Outstanding by any rating, was the exposure of how fifth column activities helped Germany conquer. It was first disclosed in the conquest of Norway.

Who Killed ? Aunt Maggie

By Medora Field

YESTERDAY: All the guests at Sally and Bill's houseparty, and Sally and Bill themselves, are to be put through a kind of joint third degree in an effort to learn who the murderer among them is. For Sally's Aunt Maggie, and one of the guests, Eve Benedict, have been murdered, and it looks to Lieutenant Gregory as if the job were an inside one. Coroner Dodson, who is blind, is meantime investigating on his own — and he thinks he has found some evidence.

Chapter 39

HINT FROM KIRK

BEFORE anything further could be said, Kirk came through the drawing room door and Bob, excusing himself, stepped into the telephone closet. Instead of returning to the drawing room as I had intended, I turned into the dining room, for no other reason than to see if Kirk would follow. And I couldn't help wondering if Bob had faked that telephone errand.

The lights had been turned out in the dining room and it was almost dark, with cavernous recesses of shadow on all sides. As I groped my way nervously across the room toward the light switch, which for some strange reason had been placed at the library door, I was startled out of all proportion when I heard Kirk's voice and realized that he was just behind me.

"Look, Sally," he asked, "may I speak to you a moment?"

I turned; the room was a little lighter now that I was accustomed to the change, and it seemed foolish to insist upon turning the light up before pausing to listen.

"What is it, Kirk?" I asked, striving to make my voice sound natural.

"Nothing much," he answered. "I just wanted to say that if I were you I wouldn't go around talking about that conversation with Eve. Might not be safe to let everybody know if she told you anything."

I said again, "But she didn't. I thought I made that plain."

"No," said Kirk, "no, you didn't. Anyway, just thought I'd mention it."

I looked up into Kirk's eyes and it seemed to me they had that same strange gleam which had made me uneasy in the library the night before. That gleam that could make me think of a werewolf. It was odd, because there were no lights in the room now, except that pale shaft from the hall. Powerless to move, I stuttered, "I—I was—going to turn on the lights."

"Where's the switch?" he asked, and the sound of his voice made everything normal again. With light flooding the room, I knew I had been letting my imagination run wild.

"You were pretty mysterious about your own conversation with Eve," I reminded him.

"Oh," Kirk laughed, a little self-consciously, "you see, I was meddling. It wasn't what that policeman tried to intimate, because I never did like Eve a little bit. I was a fool, I suppose, but my mission seems to have been similar to Claire's and Alice's and maybe Bob's too." Kirk's face got red and he looked embarrassed. "You see, I had an idea that perhaps if I used a little of that he-man stuff you recommended that I could persuade her to lay off Bob and Claire. Does that sound too foolish, Sally?"

I looked at him with my mouth open. "Kirk," I said, "I think you are a fool, but a fool who has nice instincts."

He took both my hands in his, looked deep into my eyes for a long moment, and I was sure he was on the verge of telling me something. Then the door from the kitchen opened and Andrew came in. Kirk let my hands fall. "Thanks, Sally," he said.

Callers

Although I sometimes suspect it requires a bit of conniving on Andrew's part not to miss anything that goes on, such was not actually the case when he interrupted my interview with Kirk. He was legitimately on his way to answer the front doorbell. As I followed him, intending to return to the drawing room, I saw that Bill was already at the door and heard what might be described as the overtones of a commotion.

Curiosity drew me farther and there on the porch were, of all people, Judge and Mrs. Warren. The judge was indignantly expressing his opinion to a carload of photographers and reporters who had arrived simultaneously.

Apparently, just as a whole battery of cameras was trained on the stretcher which bore Eve to the ambulance, the judge and Mrs. Warren had unwittingly come between and were now a part of the picture.

What a time for callers, and especially such callers. Instantly my mind had flown to Kirk's suggestion of that morning. Could it be possible that the Warrens were trying to smoke us out in order to buy the place as a bargain?

I put the thought resolutely from my mind and stepped forward to greet them. These were old friends of my grandparents, so solid and respectable that it was impossible to associate them with anything underhand.

The judge, looking all the more squat in morning coat and striped trousers, is very much the old-style Southern gentleman, even without a goatee. His white-haired wife, taller by half a head, is one of those sweet, soft-looking old ladies who can be as hard as nails when it comes to getting her own way. How I should have loved to duck and run.

The judge was still vituperating. "Impudent young whippersnappers," he sputtered. "Like to have them come up before me in court. Ah, Sally, my dear, such distressing news. Such distressing news. We came to see if we could be of any service."

"Such a terrible thing to happen in your grandmother's house," said Mrs. Warren, who is quite deaf, yet never raises her voice. "I cannot believe that it is true. Have you really had a murder, my dear?"

"Two," I said, automatically holding up two fingers and motioning her into the drawing room. The judge followed, leaving Bill to deal with the gentlemen of the press, who seemed pleased enough to see the judicial coattails turned in their direction.

"Dear me!" Mrs. Warren ejaculated. "What have you done to this room? Or am I seeing double? There certainly are two fireplaces in here."

I explained to her as fully as I could that we liked the idea of one long room instead of two square ones and that I thought it gave a beautiful effect of spaciousness.

"Spaciousness," she sniffed. "Looks like the state apartments at Windsor Castle to me."

"Oh, no," Bob objected with one of his whimsical smiles, "not nearly enough gilt for that."

Gallantry

The men, of course, had risen and had to remain standing while each name was repeated twice for Mrs. Warren and she had got everybody's family relationships straight. She insisted upon calling Kirk Mr. Price and asking if he was related to the Prices of North Carolina. "Glad to hear it," she said inexplicably when it was finally dinned into her head that he was neither a Price nor a North Carolinian.

"And how is your dear grandmother?" to Claire. "We went to school together in Switzerland, you know. You are really just like her, except that her hair was dark while yours has that lovely Titian shade."

"Can't see what the young men can be thinking about to let such a beautiful girl stay single," the judge remarked with intended gallantry.

"May I give you some tea?" I asked, as Roberts came in to say that Bill was wanted in the library again. Mr. Marshall hastily arose and made his excuses, and so did Mr. Dodson, both glad to escape the callers even though it meant a session with the police.

The judge, learning with something akin to horror that the police were actually encamped in the house, was instantly on his feet, insisting that he would speak a word to whoever was in charge. "I knew your father and your grandfather," he told me benignantly. "I will see that you are not inconvenienced any more than is necessary, my dear."

"That's very sweet of you," I acknowledged, knowing that it was useless to try to stop him. I could imagine him telling Lieutenant Gregory, with great dignity, that the charges against Bill were absurd because he had known Bill's wife's grandfather. Of course, he was right in a way, but it wasn't a way that went very far any longer.

As Mrs. Warren sipped her tea she plied us all with questions, to which most of the answers had to be shouted several times. "I should think you could not bear to think of staying here after all that has happened," she told me, her keen old eyes watching my every expression.

"Oh," I said, "I love the house. I spent practically all my summers here as a child, you know."

"Yes, of course, but how do you feel about it now?"

I looked her squarely in the eyes and said, "Well, I'm still planning to have little Sally make her debut here. This room is perfect for it. The receiving line can stand between these two fireplaces."

"How old is she now?" she asked.

"Only two," I admitted. "I hope all this will be forgotten long before she's old enough for a debut. Anyway, I just plainly do not believe in haunted houses. Some human agency is responsible for what has happened this week-end. Not the house itself."

"Roswell has never had such a scandal," Mrs. Warren observed with relish. I could picture her serving it up to her bridge club, a choice morsel, equal to breast of guinea under glass. "You are sure, my dear, that you have no suspicions?"

"Oh, well," I answered, "I'm getting to the point where I suspect my own shadow. Take care I don't start suspecting innocent callers."

She met my inane smile with a shrewd look from her bright old eyes, stirred her tea and sipped again. Glancing around at the group, she said unexpectedly, "I can see where it does rather place you in a delicate position. No one to suspect but your guests."

Andrew came in softly, made a pretense of raising the lid of the hot water kettle and whispered, "Miss Sally, Ma'am, can you come out in the hall quick?"

Santa and The Giant-Killer

THE STORY SO FAR: Eric, a fisherman's son, to prove that he is brave enough to be king, has defeated three giants. Now he sets out to help three brothers who had been under the spell of the giants.

Chapter Eighteen

TWO MORE PRINCES GIVEN FREEDOM

THE young men flew to the Iron Mountain quicker than it takes to tell. And there in the entrance, half way up the side, they could see another handsome young man waving his red cap from side to side to attract their attention.

Eric reined in his flying horse so that they settled down easily to the narrow ledge where the young man stood.

Eric's friend leaped out of the saddle with one move and threw his arms about the second young man. They both shouted, "Brother."

Eric grinned happily at their pleasure. Then the two turned around and said, "A thousand thanks to you."

"But now how shall I tell you apart?" said Eric.

The two youths laughed. The one Eric had found inside the circle of fire bowed and said, "I am Harald of Thuringia, heir to the throne."

The second lad bowed and said, "And I am Peter, his brother, second in line."

"Now the troll in the castle behind the East Wind must be your other brother," said Eric. "Let us hurry there."

Waves Blue Cap

They all three jumped onto the back of the winged horse and hurried to the castle behind the East Wind. As they circled down over it they saw a young man excitedly waving at them with a blue cap.

Eric brought his horse down beside the young man and, sure enough, it was Conrad, the third brother. There was just enough room to seat him on the horse.

So now the four young men decided to find out what had happened to the kingdom of the three brothers during the hundred years they had been bewitched by the giant who had no heart.

They flew straight to the capital of their kingdom. They could recognize that easily, because their father had built three castles on three hills so that each of his sons would have a fine home when he took a bride.

They soon saw the city where three castles stood on three hills. But when they looked down onto the streets they saw grass choking up the thoroughfares. Windows were broken in homes. There was no smoke from any of the chimneys and they saw not one single person.

Great Green Snakes

Instead, they saw great, green snakes slipping in and out of doorways, lying coiled up in the sun, or slithering up tree trunks to steal eggs from birds' nests.

The three brothers lamented loudly, but Eric was silent and thoughtful. He didn't dare ask his horse to settle down into one of the streets for they might all have been bitten by snakes. But he pulled the black coal from his pocket—the one he had picked up on the mountain top—and threw it down on the outskirts of the city.

Suddenly a great circle of fire crept around the city and grew as high as any of the houses. Snakes tumbled out of all manner of holes.

There were so many that the sidewalks were black with them. They all tried to get out of the city and back into the hills. But as each came to the end of a street there was a wall of flame. One by one the snakes were burned. And then Eric whispered to his winged horse to set them down in the square.

The three brothers dashed in and out of houses. But everywhere they went there was the same desolation. They didn't find a soul in the city.

MONDAY: The people return.

IN REMEMBRANCE

In sad and loving memory of our dear wife and sister, Clennie R. Albert, who passed away on the 19th of December, 1939.

In the silent shade of Sunnyside
In the narrow casket bed
They have placed our loving wife and sister
With the calm and peaceful dead.

With the rose wreathed about her,
And the flowers on her breast
Wake her not, the Savior called her,
Sweetly, calmly, let her rest.

Husband and Sister

We would not have you back on earth
Your body racked with pain,
We know that longing for your Mirth and comradeship is vain.

And yet when we sit wondering
And night is merged with day
It seems your spirit comes to bring
The words you cannot say.

Sports Roundup

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Dec. 21—Scooparade: Coach Tom Lieb of Florida is looking for two assistants and some games with Eastern teams. . . . The Yankee-Dodger deal for Monte Pearson is off and he'll likely be sold outright to the Reds. . . . Big Abe Simon has been offered an Oakland fight with Buddy Baer with the proviso that the winner meet Louis in Los Angeles. Does that mean Godoy is out of luck? . . . Herbert M. Woolf, owner of a racing stable which includes Lawrin, former Kentucky Derby winner, is being mentioned as one of the stockholders if Jim Farley ever gets around to buying the Yankees.

Got the answer—Jim Wells of Buffalo says he knows what Alex Kampouris will be doing in the Dodger infield next season—teaching the Messrs. Camilli, Lavagetto and Coscarart to speak Greek.

Orphanage dept.—No Ma-No Pa is the name of a horse just registered with the jockey club. . . .His daddy died before he was born and his mother failed to survive his birth.

No phiddling around—The Phillies will play 30 odd exhibition games next spring, more than ever before. . . . Well, they need the practice.

TURTLE-BURGERS! HOT OFF THE GRILL!

Key West, Fla. (AP) — Turtle-burgers are old stuff to natives of Key West, where meat has to come almost 175 miles by truck from Miami.

They are made from the steak of turtles, ground and seasoned with onion, pepper and salt. More and more they're being put on sale, and tourists go for them, although they fall into the luxury class—25 cents each.

AMUSEMENTS: HERE AND THERE

NEXT WEEK AT THE MAJESTIC
Monday — "HIT PARADE OF 1941"
Tuesday — "BLONDIE PLAYS CUPID"
Tuesday at midnight — "I'M STILL ALIVE"
Wednesday (Christmas Day) and Thursday — "YOU'LL FIND OUT"
(Continuous shows Wednesday, starting at 12:45 p. m.)
Friday and Saturday — "ARIZONA"

"HIT Parade of 1941" presents an all-star cast, including Kenny Baker, Frances Langford, Hugh Herbert, Mary Boland, Ann Miller, Patsy and Phil Silvers, in a laugh-fest and jam session, combining spritely tunes and colorful dances with an engaging plot.

Borrah Minevitch and his Rascals, those harmonica maniacs, fill a prominent spot in the bill, as do "Six Hits and a Miss." The inimitable Sterling Holloway scores in his comedy characterization of the philosophical soda jerker, and Barnett Parker, and Donald McBride add to the general merry-making.

The story deals with the tribulations of Kenny Baker and Hugh Herbert, first as proprietors of an insolvent antique shop, and then of an insolvent radio station, only to learn that the advent of television will entail a gigantic expense in equipping the station for sight as well as sound.

Matters go from bad to worse, but Miss Langford, aided and abetted by the Miss Kelly and Miller, ultimately save the day and peace and prosperity are restored to Station WPX.

The Strand will offer "Cherokee Strip" on Christmas Day. Richard Dix is starred. The shows will begin at 11:15 a. m.

"BLONDIE Plays Cupid has the same characters, Blondie, Dagwood, Baby Dumpling and Daisy as are seen in Chic Young's daily comic strip appearing in The Gettysburg Times.

In much the same manner as in previous "Blondie" hits, the Bumsteads are faced with a rather minor problem, which all too soon threatens to develop into a major tragedy. This time the dilemma arises when Blondie decides that the family should visit her Aunt Hannah in the country, where they will be certain to enjoy a safe and sane Fourth of July.

In true Bumstead fashion, America's most lovable family finds itself embroiled in a disastrous entanglement even before they reach Aunt Hannah's ranch. Blondie befriends a young couple, planning to marry, and in a very short time, Mrs. Bumstead has made all necessary arrangements for their elopment. Mild complications arise when the prospective groom sprains his ankle and Blondie insists that Dagwood go through with the elopment for him. And then, things begin to hum when he tries to elope with the bride's father by mistake. Matters really come to a head, though, when right in the midst of all this trouble, Baby Dumpling lights a stick of dynamite, believing that it's only a harmless firecracker.

Their delirious adventures pile up in rip-roaring fashion and, of course, they happily blunder through to overwhelming success.

The cast of this gay comedy again features Penny Singleton as Blondie, Arthur Lake as Dagwood, and Larry Simons as Baby Dumpling, while Daisy once more contributes his share of acting in true mongrel fashion.

Some of the most spectacular stunts ever performed for screen thrills, and scenes showing how they are made, are seen in "I'm Still Alive," romance of Hollywood's stunt-men. Featuring Kent Taylor and Linda Hayes, the new offering gives an inside story of the film capital from a viewpoint never before presented.

KAY KYSER was such a sensational success in "That's Right, You're Wrong," his starring film of last year, that the band leader and his College of Musical Knowledge were returned to the RKO Radio studio for a second film, "You'll Find Out."

Differing widely from the plot pattern of the first, Kay is still the natural "Ol' Professor" of his air program, but now in "You'll Find Out" he is involved in mystery as well as music.

Those chief bogey-men of the screen, Peter Lorre, Boris Karoff and Bela Lugosi are merchants of the menace that hangs over the head of pretty Helen Parrish, sweetheart of Dennis O'Keefe and niece of Alma Kruger.

Such popular specialists in Kyser's musical troupe as Ginny Simms, Harry Babbitt, Ish Kabibble and Sully Mason are also featured, not only playing important roles in the melodyrama, but performing the various specialties for which they are famous.

John Mercer and James McHugh have written five hit tunes for "You'll Find Out," which David Butler produced and directed.

Don "Red" Barry will be seen in "Texas Terriors" on the Strand screen next Saturday.

THE stupendous scale on which Wesley Ruggles filmed "Arizona," Columbia's saga of the old southwest's most exciting era, is best sensed by glancing at a few statistics, for figures often speak more eloquently than words.

Based on the popular novel by Clarence Budington Kelland, "Arizona" has Jean Arthur starred as Phoebe Titus, while William Holden portrays Peter Muncie and Warren William is a border gambler, Carteret.

"Arizona" was filmed almost entirely in that state, meaning that the producer-director and 27 studio departments had to function efficiently at a distance of 500 miles from home base.

Here are some of the figures on the undertaking:

"Arizona" has 146 speaking parts, some played by well known Hollywood stars, the remainder by popular supporting artists.

It utilized 2,500 atmosphere players and an equal number of Indian warriors, all selected in Arizona.

* * *

Thousands of range cattle, including Brahma steers, buffalo, cows, Mexican oxen, horses, Indian ponies, burros, sheep, goats, stray dogs, chickens, hogs and even a gila monster, were required for background atmosphere.

Properties required were gathered from all over the United States. They icluded authentic frontier-type vehicles, costumes, an arsenal of 5,000 guns, old-fashioned tinware and clothing, even a candle dipper.

* * *

Many of the dramatic and romantic highlights of "Arizona" took place in Tucson during the years 1859-64. Columbia completely rebuilt the ancient walled town on a mile-square site 16 miles north of modern Tucson. This project, without precedent in motion picture history, suggests the magnitude of the entire undertaking.

The rebuilt city consisted of 11 streets, more than 125 adobe buildings including an historic mission; the 2400-foot-long adobe battlements crowned with gun towers; a river, constructed by studio technicians; three wells, bridges, fences and Indian hogans.

The re-created city required two months to build and engaged the labor of 650 men working on double shifts.

Three other settings were selected for "Arizona." One of these was necessary for a gigantic cattle stampede. Another represented the hacienda of Phoebe Titus and, to live up to the story, required 160 acres of land under cultivation. A third was used to show a massed battle involving thousands of charging Apaches.

With completion of the picture Old Tucson was turned over to the state of Arizona as a national park. The buildings are permanent and will serve as a landmark of progress in the old southwest.
